Explanation: The Combat Identification for Dismounted Soldier (CIDDS) program is a lightweight, laser-based, question and answer type system, used by individual soldiers to positively identify friendly soldiers. The National Defense Authorization Act for FY 2000 authorized the funds for this effort in the correct program element; the FY 2000 DoD Appropriations Act did not appropriate the funds in the proper program element. This action is required to move the appropriated funds to the proper program element for execution.
